

* (edited for relevant content)

Dear All,

Many of you are aware that we have arranged a special and highly privileged exchange program with Wageningen University in the Netherlands that allows for our students to take courses at Wageningen (in English) for no fees.

Wageningen is perhaps Europe's finest institution in the disciplines of Environment, Agriculture, Landscape and International Development among others. Many courses at Wageningen closely match courses available at UCD, in addition there is a wealth of course work we do not offer. For most UCD majors, time spent at Wageningen will not slow time to graduation. In exchange Dutch MS students will be welcome at UCD to complete their research thesis requirements, generally at very low/no cost to UCD professors.

UCD is the only UC campus with this opportunity and it is realistically an opportunity for your best students to challenge themselves, obtain course work that will enrich their degrees, 'learn' new perspectives, approaches and skills and improve their competitiveness. Internship opportunities are also available.

Sincerely,

Patrick

--

Patrick Brown
Professor of Plant Nutrition
Chair, International Agriculture Development Graduate Group
College of Agricultural and Environmental Sciences
University of California
Davis, CA
530 7520929
530 752 8474 (International Programs Office)
email: phbrown@ucdavis.edu